

CLEVELAND'S HOME

He Has Selected the Fine Mansion,
No. 816 Madison Avenue.

Banker Henry G. Marquand His Neighbor and Landlord.

The Ex-President Has Leased for Two Years, with Option of Purchase.

Citizen Grover Cleveland has finally decided to settle down permanently in Gotham and has selected his place of future residence.

It is a fine and imposing mansion, at 816 Madison avenue, and adjoins the magnificent residence of Banker Henry G. Marquand, at the corner of Sixty-eighth street and Madison avenue, who becomes the ex-President's landlord under the agreement which has just been entered into.

Mr. Cleveland has not bought the house, but has taken a lease of it for two years, and it is understood that if he is satisfied with it he will purchase it at the expiration of that time.

The Evening World was called at his home this morning. "Mr. Cleveland and his wife are to become my tenants, and I am very glad to have such good neighbors."

"I have always wanted to sell that house, but as I could not get the right sort of a tenant it has been unoccupied ever since it was built."

On that account I let it to Mr. Cleveland at a very reasonable rental, much less, in fact, than I would have done last year, or any previous year."

Will Mr. Cleveland take possession immediately?

"Oh, no, the lease is not to commence until the first of September. A great deal has got to be done in the way of fixing up and it will take all summer to do it."

"I am anxious that Mr. Cleveland should be perfectly satisfied with the house, and would like to have him become a purchaser. It is a pretty expensive house, though, and perhaps he hasn't the means to purchase it now."

The residence selected by Mr. Cleveland is one of the two houses that were built by Mr. Mar-quand six years ago on Madison avenue adjoining his own house.

One of these houses has already been occupied by Mr. Marquand's daughter, but Mr. Cleveland's has never had a tenant.

In its general style and appearance it corresponds with the Marquand mansion, being of red brick, with light brown stone trimmings.
It is five stories high, has a frontage of 80 feet on Madison avenue and a depth of 73 feet.

The front is irregular in the style of its architecture, and is broken at the north gable by a square turret of light sandstone.

Wide double windows in the first and second floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door of carved oak is approached from the side by a stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a
stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact
duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a
stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact
duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a
stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact
duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact
duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact
duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact
duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact
duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a stone porch.

The adjoining building, No. 814, which is occupied by Mr. Marquand, is very similar in appearance without being an exact
duplication, and the two together at first glance
appear to be one building.

Wide double windows in the first and second
floors add to the massive and aristocratic appearance of the mansion and the wide front door
of carved oak is approached from the side by a
stone porch.

SUICIDE OR MURDER.

A Man Found Drowned and Tied to an Iron Weight.

Taken Out of the Harlem River at Daybreak To-day.

He Was Young and Well Dressed, but His Name Is Unknown.

"Officer, ain't that a man in the water?"

The questioner was a man who had just crossed Harlem Bridge at 4.50 this morning, and his question started Officer N. O. 104, of the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station.

The officer peered through the gray mist of dawn down into the river beside the bridge.
Yes, unmistakably, it was a face that met his gaze, unturned.

The officer got a boat and rowed out to the face. It was black and its owner was dead in less than five feet of water.

The dead man was seen for the body taken out and returned to the Morgue. It was the body of a man of perhaps thirty years, but bloated and decomposed.

The man had evidently been handcuffed. He had soft, wavy brown hair, now disheveled by the water, and a small brown mustache.

He was about 5 feet 10 inches in height and wore a diagonal frock coat and vest, striped pants and light brown Spring overcoat.

Here's a mystery," said the officer. "See this."

It was a piece of angle iron, such as is used in strengthening joints on the L structure, and pierced with rivet holes.

It was 18 inches long and weighed 30 pounds.
It had a gold case, enameled in black, and was
No. 2,497 of the make of "E. Dross & Sons, Lodge. There was no chain, and not a scrap of paper or writing on the body.

On his neck-seat was a pin—an owl on a bar at one end of which was a star of gold; at the other a pearl.

Deputy Coroner Jenkins said the body had been in the water at least seven weeks.
The police cannot tell whether the case is one of murder or suicide.

It is likewise unknown until the autopsy is held whether he died by drowning or was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

WAS SHE POISONED?

Startling Developments Looked For
at Miss Tobin's Inquest.

Defectives Searching for Some Clue to the Mystery.

No Trace Can Be Found of Her Affiliated Lover.

The body of Mary Tobin, which was found on the rocks off the Cliff Boat Club House just above the Quarantine station, Staten Island, still lies in Coroner Hughes's morgue at Stapleton.

Although her relatives in Pennsylvania have been notified none of them have as yet called to take charge of her body, and it seems as though the poor girl had been deserted and forgotten.

Coroner Hughes said this morning that the inquest would positively not be held to-day, and would not be held until the parts supposed to contain traces of poison have been completely analyzed and the result of the examination made known to him.

Both Coroner Hughes and Dr. Feeney refuse to say whom they suspect, but it is evident they believe the woman met with foul play.

He was about 5 feet 10 inches in height and wore a diagonal frock coat and vest, striped pants and light brown Spring overcoat.

Here's a mystery," said the officer. "See
this."

It was a piece of angle iron, such as is used in strengthening joints on the L structure, and
pierced with rivet holes.

It was 18 inches long and weighed 30 pounds.
It had a gold case, enameled in black, and was
No. 2,497 of the make of "E. Dross & Sons, Lodge. There was no chain, and not a scrap of paper or writing on the body.

On his neck-seat was a pin—an owl on a bar
at one end of which was a star of gold; at the other a pearl.

Deputy Coroner Jenkins said the body had been in the water at least seven weeks.
The police cannot tell whether the case is one
of murder or suicide.

It is likewise unknown until the autopsy is held whether he died by drowning or was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

The iron which was attached to his leg was anchored in the water after death.

THEIR LAST HOURS.

Legislators at Albany Fill Them with Much Hustling.

The Police Matron Bill Passed by the Senate To-day.

Also Another Big Appropriation Bill for Capital Improvements.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

ALBANY, May 15.—As this is practically the last business day of the session, for tomorrow adjournment will come at noon, it is likely that the legislators will not seek their couches until long after midnight.

There are great crowds of lobbyists in the corridors, and in the Assembly chamber the members tread on each other's toes in their eagerness to forward their bills.

A man with a trumpet-voice is the envy of all his fellows, for who ever yells loudest is most likely to attract the attention of the speaker.

Every now and then there is a fierce pounding of the mallet to gain some kind of order, but the storm soon breaks forth again.

In the Senate there is a great calm. The members of the upper house have disposed of all their own bills, and the Clerk is rattling through a great pile of Assembly bills.

The ladies' gallery is well filled.
One important bill has just been passed by the Senate. It is that which directs that two majors shall be employed in every police station-house in the State which require families.

It also directs that the sexes shall be lodged in different parts of the station-house, was also passed by the Senate. It appropriates $172,000 to be expended under the direction of the Capitol Commission, consisting of Lieut.-Gov.
Jones, Senator Fassett, Speaker Cole and Commissioner Perry.

THREW HERSELF BEFORE A TRAIN.
A Distracted Brooklyn Woman Nerved from Death by Her Husband.

Mrs. Kate Leach, thirty years old, living at 286 Niagara street, Brooklyn, attempted to commit suicide this morning by throwing herself in front of an approaching train on the South Side division of the Long Island Railway, in Williamsburg.

Her husband saw her go out of the house and followed her. He reached her from her perilous position. He took her to the Sixth Precinct station-house, where a charge of attempted suicide was made against her. Mrs. Leach says she is tired of living and wants to die. She is believed to be insane.

PELL WITH AN ELEVATOR.
The Rope Broke and Young Goodson Was Dashed Down Four Stories.

Arthur Goodson, eighteen years old, of 279 Baltic street, Brooklyn, received internal injuries this morning through the breaking of the elevator rope at 183 Maiden lane, which precipitated him from the fourth story to the ground floor.

An ambulance was summoned and an embargo surgeon attended to the injured man.
It was thought advisable to leave the patient in the building, and he was not removed to the hospital.

Albert's Sewing Machine.
[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—The score in the six-day match at 1 o'clock this morning was as follows: Albert, 480; Guerrero, 438; Cruzier, 403; Peterson, 371; Campana, 317.

Sam Randall Convalescing.
[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Sam Randall is on the rapid road to recovery, and expects soon to be out again. His sickness has lasted several weeks.

Two Hundred and Fifty Children Confirmed.
Two hundred and fifty children were confirmed by Archbishop Corrigan at the old cathedral in Mott street this morning.

A Wild Scheme.
[From the Chicago News.]

Mr. A. M. Cox, a Duluth manufacturer of brooms, is a practical promoter of matrimony.
He has announced to his employees that all who are married on the 1st of next month will be dismissed, while all who are married will be given higher wages. Perhaps Mr. Cox wants to increase the consumption of his wares. Unmarried people have no use for brooms.

WAR IN SUMATRA.
The Dutch Garrison at Edil Has Two Sever Battles with Natives.

[BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.] LONDON, May 15.—A heavy bullet operator, whose name is withheld for the present, has fallen.

He dealt principally in South Africans, but had extensive transactions in British rails and Frank Trunks.

He has absconded, leaving his affairs in confusion.

Two Little Fires.
Fire at 100 Sheriff street, in Boardman & Gutting's tailor shop and M. Silberman's tailor shop this morning, did $1,000 damage.

A fire on the new Astor place, between Fourth and Fortieth street, burned this morning. Loss $500.

wander to the chair opposite him in which his poor wife would have sat had God spared her to him.

The girls had long ago calculated how soon their brother Willie would arrive. They got a room ready for him, which was called Willie's room, and they made it as pretty as hands and money could make it, while their father looked on happy and proud and full of delight at the idea of seeing his boy home again—the "young master," and the heir to all the wealth and comfort around him.

It was just about the time that they had calculated Willie would be due that they received a telegram from Liverpool: "Arrived safely; with you to-morrow. Will."

And on the morrow a fly drove up to the house laden with luggage, and a handsome young fellow stepped out of it. The girls and their father were out in the grounds in a moment.

"My boy!" exclaimed Mr. Orpington.
His arms were held out, but suddenly he paused. "How you have changed, Will," he exclaimed. "Why, I shouldn't have known you."

"Yes, dad, I have," exclaimed the young fellow, with a laugh. "Roughing it out yonder does alter a fellow, and nine years make a difference." He kissed his father heartily, and then turned to the girls.

"Why, Lizzie," he said, "how you've grown; and you, too, Polly. Good gracious

BRIGHT WITS IN COUNCIL.

A MEETING IN WHICH MIRTH AND GOOD NATURE PREVAIL.

Friendly Advice.
(From London Punch.)

"I say! You have improved that foot these last few weeks! I should go on drawing the human foot, and nothing else, if I were you.
Brown—anyhow for another two or three years or so."

"Oh, thanks awfully—and then?"

"Why, then you might be a shoemaker, you know, and get an honest living!"

It May Be So.
(From the London Citizen.)

Brightly—Do you know why people are never stuck up in Autumn?

Dullard—Can't say that I do.
Brightly—Because pride always goes before a fall.

A Stainless Cloth.
(From the New York Weekly.)

Jinks—I called at your boarding-house today and saw the table nearly set for dinner, and I must say things looked very neat. I never saw a whiter table-cloth to my life.

Blinks—Oh, she doesn't make her tea, coffee or soups strong enough to stain.

Good Idea.
(From the Boston Courier.)

Youth—Can you give me anything to do, sir?

Y.—Clerk, sir.
X.—Clerk? Why, clerks are a drug in the labor market just now.

Y.—They are? Well, if that's the case I had better look for a job as a drug clerk.

The Cure Easily Applied.
(From the Chicago Tribune.)

Mrs. Cahokia—Alfred, I have been reading about the hot air treatment for weak lungs, and I think I should like to try it.

Mr. Cahokia (struck by a happy thought).
All right, Emeralda. This is April. Next month is May. We'll spend the whole month right here in St. Louis.

The Outcome of the Suit.
(From Judge.)

Bryerton—There isn't much left of you, my friend.

Witchers—Not a great deal. I used Mullin the other day.

Bryerton—Get anything?
Witchers—Not in court. I met him after the session, though, and secured heavy damages.

Boil your Overalls

JUMPERS—any or all your working clothes for TWENTY MINUTES in a solution of PYLE'S PEARLINE and WATER. Stir occasionally, then rinse thoroughly—they will look like new. It pays a workman to be clean and tidy. Its far more healthy—besides you'll

Save your Old Lady

a Heap
of Trouble

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pear-line, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous. PEARLINE is never peddled, but sold by all good grocers. Manufactured only by JAMES PYLE, New York.

"Isn't he handsome, Lizzie?" said Polly.
"Oh, I'm so glad he is. You know I was half afraid he'd come back ugly and awkward."

Lizzie agreed that he was very handsome, but do what she would she could not shake off the strange feeling that came upon her when her brother first gave her a brotherly kiss.

What that feeling was she couldn't say. All she could explain to herself was that Will wasn't what she'd expected him to be; and that feeling was a very long time in wearing off.